We are there for your child from the very start.

The first few years of life are extremely important for a child's development.

Please get in touch with us if ...

- you have any questions concerning your child's development
- your child is not developing appropriately for their age
- your child behaves differently to other children
- a delayed development or disability has been diagnosed in your child

The first meeting and follow-up diagnosis appointment are in any case non-binding for you.

Supporting the whole family

We nurture your child and support you as a whole family. This can be in your home, in preschool or in the facilities of the early years support unit.

Many different specialists work at the interdisciplinary early years support unit. At present these include occupational therapists, speech therapists, special and curative education therapists.

We work together with paediatricians, emergency services, authorities, associations and other institutions. This allows us to help you coordinate all the important activities for your child, and to make important decisions for your child's development.

Early years support is free of charge for you

As a rule the costs are borne by your health insurance provider and the local welfare authority.
